A TRUNKLESS HEAD.

A Horrible Discovery Near Sausalito.

Mysterious Disappearance of Miss Addie Gilmore.

The Coroner's Jury Not Certain She is Dead.

An Alleged Detective Arrested in Washington—A Million-Dollar Land Case—The San Francisco-Panama Mail Contract Annulled.

By Telegram to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) The skull of a woman was found near Sausalito on September 14, enclosed in a piece of wire netting. It was positively identified at the morgue here this morning by Laura Allen and W. K. de Jarnett, of Colusa, as that of Addie Gilmore of Colusa. Miss Gilmore had been employed by Topitz in a millinery in San Francisco. She resided at No. 314 Bush street. She was last seen alive on September 4. When found, the Examiner of July 21, 1893, was found inside of the netting around the skull. Miss Allen and de Jarnett identified the head, as one of her teeth is gone and one filled, also by the shape of the head and a small piece of hair.

Coroner Eden impaneled a jury this afternoon and held an inquest. Dr. Wickham testified that he thought the head had been removed from the body fully six weeks.

W. K. de Jarnett, a brother-in-law of Addie Gilmore, testified the latter was a milliner, and was doing business in partnership with Laura Allen, in Colusa. The witness said: "I saw her last August of this year. She visited me at Maxwell, Colusa county, on September 4. Her sister received a letter from her in Colusa, in which she would write about her. Nothing has been heard from her since, and I went to San Francisco recently in search of her, intending to come to the morgue, and I think it is the head of Addie Gilmore. She kept a company with R. McAnnis of Colusa, but once lately; that was to buy a stock of goods."

The deceased went to San Francisco some time ago to work in a wholesale millinery establishment, and to learn to trim hats.

Laura Allen, who was Miss Gilmore's partner in Colusa, testified that she saw the latter for the last time on August 7 at her home at Colusa. She had seen the head in the morgue, and from the teeth and shape of the head, she thought it was the head of Addie Gilmore. She kept a company with R. McAnnis of Colusa, but once lately; that was to buy a stock of goods.

The jury rendered a verdict that the name of the deceased was unknown, and the cause of death was unknown.

KNOWN IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Miss Gilmore Let Her Situation About Two Weeks Ago.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) Addie Gilmore, whose head was found floating in the bay, lived at the Elmer House on Bush street, this city. The man in charge of the house said she left about two weeks ago, and had not returned. More than that he refused to say, though he claimed to know all about her. At the millinery store of E. Topitz, on Market street, it was learned Miss Gilmore worked there. The proprietor of the store stated that Miss Gilmore was a resident of Colusa, and owned a store there. About three weeks ago she went to work in the Topitz store in order to learn styles. She left a week and a half ago, and the proprietor said she had not returned home until her partner, Miss Allen, came from Colusa to make inquiries as to her whereabouts.

SERVICE ABANDONED.

Contract Between the Government and the Pacific Mail Company Abandoned.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) The announcement is made here that, at the request of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, Postmaster-General Allen has annulled the contract between the government and that company for carrying the mails between this port and Panama, and intermediate ports in Mexico and Central America.

The annulment is to take effect on September 30. The company officials claim that the contract necessitates an extra service, including additional steamers, and more frequent stops, and that the company is consequently losing money on its regular business, especially in view of the competition now offered by the North American Navigation Company.

It is said, though the company officials do not confirm it, that after the expiration of the mail contract, but two steamers per month will be run between San Francisco and Panama, and that the present call at San Diego will be abandoned.

SCHOOL LANDS.

The Title to Property Valued at $1,000,000 is Involved.

TACOMA, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) A case involving title to school lands worth $1,000,000, situated less than two miles from the business center of Tacoma, is to be heard before Secretary Hoke Smith on September 26. John G. McBride, a merchant, filed his claim. The case now to be heard is the State's appeal from the Land Office Commissioner's decision in favor of McBride. Atty.-Gen. Jones and ex-Congressman W. H. Calkins left for Washington to argue the case for the State.

A QUEER CASE.

Arrest of an American Citizen in Lower California.

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) It was developed today that the visit of Judge Jose Monroy and Pedro Martinez Lopez of Ensenada to this city and Tijuana was for the purpose of investigating the manner in which William Whitman, the fugitive express robber, was brought across the national line.

Whitman absconded from Springfield, Ill., with $3500 belonging to the American Express Company, and was located at the Valley of Palms, Lower California. Some months ago, according to a letter from him to the Sheriff here, he agreed to surrender himself and the money he still retained, and go East to stand trial in case the express company would agree to deal leniently with him.

Soon afterward Under Sheriff Calkins went to the Valley of Palms and returned with Whitman, who was

A Santa Fe Line Moves Its Headquarters—No Lay-off to Be Allowed—General News and Local Notes.

There was nothing new to be learned about the passenger rate war yesterday, though it was the day when the Santa Fe met the Southern Pacific's $15 cut through the Cherokee strip. Tuesday is usually the best business day for the Santa Fe's east-bound travel, and the trains were yesterday more crowded than they would have been at the higher rate. The tourist car excursions, which are run weekly or bi-weekly over the Southern Pacific's northern route, have been deprived of business since the rate cut, and the agents are feeling some about it. The Southern Pacific has not yet met the rate made to San Francisco by way of Mojave, but when it does more cuts will follow. If the Southern Pacific does not carry the war into the north, there will probably be a temporary lull in the rate war. The World's Fair comes to a close. There is not enough east-bound passenger business to justify the extra charges. A very low rate to California this winter will fill up every city and town in the section.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC MORTGAGE.

A New York dispatch quotes C. P. Huntington as saying, in response to inquiries regarding the Southern Pacific's new mortgage:

"The mortgage will be a first lien on all of the company's property, including the lands. The company has built during the past two years over one hundred miles of track, on which there is no lien, and the new mortgage will be a first lien on this mileage. The balance of the new bonds will be issued gradually, and only as the construction of the new mileage proceeds. The conditions of the mortgage are in line with the general policy adopted by almost all the large companies at the present day to merge all their mortgages into one mortgage, and to mortgage both land and track. The balance of the new bonds will be issued gradually, and only as the construction of the new mileage proceeds. The conditions of the mortgage are in line with the general policy adopted by almost all the large companies at the present day to merge all their mortgages into one mortgage, and to mortgage both land and track."

A SUBSTITUTE BILL.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) The Senate today, Mr. Squire of Washington submitted an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the repeal bill. It provides that silver bullion may be deposited at any mint to be formed into standard dollars of present weight and fineness for the benefit of the government, but shall only be paid to the person so depositing such number of standard silver dollars as shall equal the commercial value of the silver bullion deposited.

The difference, if any, between the commercial and commercial value shall be retained by the government, and the balance shall not exceed $400,000 per month, and when the gross amount has reached $200,000,000, it is to cease. The dollars thus coined are to be left to the maker.

THE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) The Judiciary Committee of the House held an important meeting today. The committee presented a favorable report on the Torrey Bankruptcy Bill, and next Thursday was set for consideration of the bill by the full committee. The committee also ordered a favorable report on Col. Oates's substitute for the bill repealing the Federal election laws.

The Senate Makes Appropriations for the Rejected Senators.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) The Senate agreed today to allow A. C. THE RELIGIOUS PARLIAMENT.

THE SCIENTIFIC BOARD.

Its Affairs Being Conducted by the Grand Jury.

It is understood that the grand jury is investigating the affairs of the Board of Education, with a view to ascertaining what foundation in fact there is for the numerous reports that commissions are paid to members of the board on the basis of the number of children in the schools. The junketing trip made by a committee of the board at the expense of the company having a patent heating and ventilating system is also being inquired into. The charge is openly made that on all insurance placed on the various school buildings the board of education has been compelled to pay a brokerage of 15 per cent. One of the insurance agents stated publicly a day or two ago that when he called on Mr. Ashman, the gentleman told him plainly that "there was 15 per cent. in it," and that he then went to Mr. Buehler, and told him that the board of education was being done. This matter is now under investigation by the grand jury, but whether a case can be made out remains to be seen.

THE RACE POSTPONED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—At a meeting of the Cup Committee today, a letter from Lord Dunraven, embodying a request that, as the Valkyrie had not yet arrived, the race be postponed to October 1, was read, and the date mentioned was agreed upon.

THEIR FINAL REST.

Reinterment of the Remains of ex-President James K. Polk.

NASHVILLE (Tenn.), Sept. 19.—(By the Associated Press.) With simple but solemn ceremonies, the remains of James K. Polk, the tenth President of the United States, and those of his wife, were removed from the tomb at the Polk place, the old family residence, in this city, this morning to the Capitol grounds, and reinterment. The services at the Polk place and Capitol Hill were very impressive, and the occasion was honored with due respect by State, city, church and people, by the tolling of bells, closing of places of business and a large attendance on the ceremonies.

A Lesson from the Midway Plaisance

The individual who has never traveled extensively, and who has seen little of life beyond his own section, can hardly realize what a conglomerate the race is. Probably the world never afforded a better illustration of human diversity, as regards color, features, habits and civilization, than may be found at Chicago among the populace of the Midway Plaisance, where humanity is viewed as in an ever-changing kaleidoscope, or a constantly shifting panorama. There may be found the half-naked Dahomeans, with their sharpened spears and habiliments of savage warfare; the yellow-skinned Samoans, with a certain beauty of their own, clad like Adam, after his fall, in their habiliments of green leaves; the graceful Japanese, in fantastic, silken dress, richly embroidered; the Turk, with his waving banner, on which the star and crescent are inscribed, emblems of his centuries-old faith; the Egyptian, brown with the desert sun, with gilded trappings upon the back of his patient camel; the native American Indian, with his savage undisciplined, and his conscience dormant, his head covered with eagle's feathers, and his face as familiar with paint as the cheeks of the American belle of civilization; the wild and fleet-footed Bedouin, upon his Arab steed; the Esquimaux, sweltering in the heat of the summer sun; the almond-eyed Celestial, treading the same beaten paths that his ancestors trod thousands of years ago, while yet the world was young, and modern civilization was a thing undreamed of, asleep as it then was upon the breast of a distant future. Here representatives of all the tribes of the earth are gathered, and here humanity may be studied with wonder and with interest.

From the various standpoints which the Midway affords, we can go back to the time when the race was cradled in barbarism, and follow it along its various lines of progress and development. We may wonder what has caused it here to halt, and there to progress. We may find everywhere contrasting lights and shadows, and great problems difficult of solution, for the fair is the vast schoolroom where we may study and analyze the race. What an incalculable distance between the wild and semi-barbaric races and the enlightened and cultured of our highest civilization—the cannibal from the South Sea Islands, and the savant nurtured by colleges and universities.

The Midway Plaisance is an object lesson that will not soon fade from the memories of those who are permitted to study it. Its teachings are impressive in their character, and calculated to inspire the thoughtful mind with a sense of what men owe to freedom and Christian enlightenment. The divergent paths of the race are not difficult to trace, nor the causes which tend to their separation. Nowhere is there rapid growth and achievement where the idea of individual rights does not obtain, and the universal right of men to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" is disregarded. With these semi-barbarians and more savage tribes, represented at this gathering of all nations, "might makes right." The underlying principles of justice and mercy are not recognized as precepts by which actions should be governed, and how cruel and barbaric lawlessness. Hundreds of centuries look down upon the race, but we may see at this Midway Plaisance that millions are yet between savagery and civilization, and that a stupendous work has yet to be accomplished before the race, as a whole, shall be fit for self-government and a permanent civilization.

He Talks Well.

"If the representatives who have assembled to make laws for their fellow-countrymen forget their duty of broad, disinterested patriotism, and legislate in prejudice and passion in behalf of sectional and selfish interest, the time when the corner-stone of our capital was laid and the circumstances surrounding it will not be worth commemorating."

These were the utterances of President Cleveland on the 18th, upon the occasion of the centennial celebration of the laying of the corner-stone of the capitol at Washington. Now if he and the Democratic Congress will only live up to his words, the great Republican party and the loyal sentiment of the country will be satisfied, and there will be nothing to impede the wheels of our national progress.

It is reported that the speculator who is trying to corner the wheat market in San Francisco has obtained something like $2,000,000 from the banks of that city to assist him in his scheme. Yet these banks say they are unable to advance a dollar to farmers to help them move the crops. Such tactics as these will not tend to make the banks more popular with the people.

Send away all the highlanders, under the Georgia law, and then extend the time for registration until the end of the year. That will about meet the views of a majority of the people of this State.

Practical Education.

Senator Peffer recently introduced a remarkable bill into the Senate, creating a department of education under the supervision of a secretary of education, who within three years after the passage of the act shall cause to be constructed a college of scientific learning, in which shall be taught all classic and professional studies, art, etc., to be known as the Scientific University of the Red, White and Blue Cross. The bill appropriates $10,000,000 to construct the college, and $3,000,000 more is appropriated to create an endowment to be known as the Scientific college fund. The Secretary of the Treasury is directed to purchase aluminum to the total amount of the appropriations and coin in denominations of 1 cent to $20.

Leaving the aluminum and the "Red, White and Blue Cross," the idea of having a department of education is not a bad one, but the money could be much better expended than in teaching the sciences and classics. In the opinion of many there is already too much scientific and classical tuition in this country, hence the number of Greek and Latin scholars who may be found driving horse cars, herding sheep or "slinging hash." Thousands of embryo doctors, lawyers and parsons are turned out annually by our many universities to wage an uneven battle in trying to obtain a foothold in the so-called "liberal" professions, for the practice of which a majority of them have no special adaptation. What we need in this country are manual training schools, and plenty of them. It does not necessarily follow, because a boy has been taught the rudiments of a trade, that he should follow it all his life. Should he develop ability in any particular line of research, or science, or art, his knowledge of a trade would not prevent him from following the bent of his inclination. At the same time, he would be insured against the painful necessity of drifting about the world as an unskilled laborer, breaking his heart in trying to compete with men who were born with an ability to perform hard manual labor.

The manual training school idea is at present in its infancy in this country, but it may be expected to spread rapidly during the next few years. In this section Mr. Throop has set a good example by devoting his fortune to the establishment of a college at Pasadena, in which manual training is a leading feature. It is to be hoped that some of our wealthy citizens will before long give us such an institution in Los Angeles. Meantime, if the government is going to spend any money for education, let that education be of a practical character, such as will best fit the boy to hold his own in the battle of life, which, in these closing years of the nineteenth century, promises soon to degenerate into a struggle for existence.

Fictitious Values.

Senator Teller, referring to the immense depression in the value of stocks, which the papers have finally made as much as $700,000,000 expressed some remarks which are entirely in line with the views of The Times. In his opinion, a great many stocks were selling on the market for more than they are worth. He cited Northern Pacific, which he said had fallen from 70 to 17. It was said that all of the great owners connected with it unloaded when it was 70. The company had $250,000,000 of indebtedness $75,000,000 of which was held in Germany, and a great amount in Holland and England. "Don't you think," asked the Colorado Senator, "that when a great corporation like that collapses, and is left with a debt so great that its most enthusiastic friends cannot hope it can ever pay, that the finances in this country might be disturbed as well as in Europe?"

The Senator then referred to other stocks which are in about the same condition. It is a fact, as The Times has pointed out, that the so-called great drop in values of stocks has been simply a settling down to actual valuations, although, of course, many good stocks have temporarily suffered, as the solvent banks of this city did when a rotten institution collapsed. The bubble has been pricked, and the water let out of these stocks, that is all. Actually, they are not worth any less today than they were six months ago.

The latest "important" news telegraphed from the East about the arrival in the Cleveland family is the effect that her future has been predicted by an astrologer, and full details of what the young lady may expect from fate are given. The compiler of the London Court Journal will have to look to his laurels.

The news from the Cherokee Strip reads like a passage from Dante's "Inferno." After waiting in crowds under the blazing sun, and smothered by blinding dust, these thousands of eager home-seekers, many of whom dropped dead in their tracks before they received certificates, finally rushed pell-mell, trampling over each other, into the promised land. Many were killed in the rush, and others were main. When they got there they found a dry, uninviting, and to a great extent, worthless country. To add to the horrors of the situation, prairie fires are sweeping through the strip, consuming the belongings of the emigrants, and driving those back who had not already left in disgust. Such a hunger for a piece of land upon which to make a living, within a little more than a century after the establishment of this great government, is pitiable. The government should lose no time in taking steps to irrigate the great arid lands of the West, which would furnish homes to millions for years to come.

That letter received by the Chamber of Commerce from Southern Illinois, in which the writer expresses the opinion that Los Angeles is too far south in California, consequently too hot for Central Illinois people, and that they would probably do better to go to Fresno, sounds very funny to residents of this section, but it is the natural inference in regard to our climate which is drawn by people who reside in the Eastern States. They suppose, of course, that the same conditions prevail here as in the East, and that the farther north you go the colder it becomes. It is difficult to make these people understand that a point in the State 500 miles north of Los Angeles may be warmer than this city. To people who are acquainted with the character of the climate of Central and Southern Illinois, the idea that the Los Angeles climate is not good enough will appear especially humorous.

The mining-stock business appears to have reached the lowest point in San Francisco. A few days ago not a single share was sold at the regular call of the San Francisco Stock Exchange. There are very few who have not seen the prospectors, yet those who are also the open-air spectacular processions and the grand march of the veterans. Whether it be more or less apparent, every exhibit is of interest in proportion as it represented human kind in man. Though men see men everywhere, there has never been a time when a procession through the grounds would not attract the multitude away from the finest art in the city. Now that Judge Ross has very wisely determined that highlanders are "laborers" in the eyes of the law, no time should be lost in arresting and deporting every one of them who can be found within the limits of the State. The Six Companies recently declared that they would assist the officials in putting down the highlanders. Here is a chance for them to show whether they mean what they say. In any case, these murderers should go. There is enough money on hand to deport every one of them, and if there were not, a public subscription for that purpose could doubtless be raised.

An old subscriber asks where is Diocletiana, and whether we can "syllabize" and pronounce the name of the word. We haven't even a reading acquaintance with the gentleman, and if his name is anything like that of the country which he utilizes over, we would not dare to attempt to pronounce it for fear of lockjaw. This correspondent also asks what were the total paid admissions to the World's Fair up to September 1. They have been published from day to day in The Times, and if our correspondent will look through a file of the paper, he can add them up himself.

It would be hard to measure the disappointed hopes of the great army of home-seekers returning from the Cherokee strip, disheartened with its sandy wastes, its dust, its barrenness and its heat. El Dorados are hard to find, and home and competence usually represent years of honest toil and persistent effort. A pioneer life is one of many sacrifices, but these can be endured where the soil and climate are in harmony with our hopes, but when these conditions are unfavorable, discouragement is apt to follow, and with that, failure.

Austria has a home-rule question now. The Emperor has suspended several articles of the constitution bearing on citizens' rights, including the freedom of the press, the right of holding public meetings, and trial by jury, for one year, owing to agitation in favor of home-rule for Bohemia. The Austrian empire is a strange conglomerate of different races. Even the currency is printed in thirteen different languages. It is only a question of time when the empire will be split up.

A good deal of the complaint uttered about the hard times is from men who find themselves unable to run into debt any further. That is hard for them, for they don't know how to live by any other means.

Let every section of the State keep alive its interest in the Midwinter Fair. If we all work together, the State, as a whole, can make of it a grand success, second only to the big show in Chicago.

(AMUSEMENT RECORD.) AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

COMING ATTRACTION.—"A Nutmeg Match," which comes to the Los Angeles Theater Monday and Tuesday, September 25 and 26, is a pathetic and humorous story of rural New England life, abounding in stirring and exciting scenes. It is said to possess many novel features, and while the ludicrous is prominent, the sturdy worth of country people is well delineated. Chief among the novel scenes is that of a pile-driver in active operation. The engine is run at full speed, and the ceaseless hissing of steam from the sure-enough boiler, in full view of the audience, and in the distance can be seen the warehouses, factories, and shipping, pictured with remarkable skill, and making one of the most novel and realistic effects ever placed upon the stage. The company presenting "A Nutmeg Match" this season is pronounced stronger than ever, and the scenery is new.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—As a specimen spectacular day, the 9th of September, California day, afforded the best example. There was the display of the State building, gorgeous with bunting, surprising with the mammoth vegetables, splendid with its golden, fragrant fruit, freely dispensed inside and outside, with liberal hand, to the dense crowd that thronged its wide aisles, and to the thousands massed around its broad, tree-lined stands in the grand avenue; there were also the open-air spectacular processions and the grand march of the veterans. One of the most picturesque and wide-antlered reindeer, duly harnessed, drawing a snow-sled of the Arctic zone. They were followed by their Lapland owners, who were dressed in the most comfortable because of the strong cold breeze from the lake. A wagon and pack-saddle horses from Korea, was followed by a team of chaise, sulky and brougham; dainty vehicles were drawn by illipit teams of different varieties of Shetlands, the most beautiful of the breed, a boy of 4 years in a model baby carriage, under the very shadow of a three-story tallboy. A complete assortment of wicker seats, from the most elegant to the most humble, were on display to the magnitude and splendor of the vehicle of the twentieth century, the electric wagon, that, like the electric street car, has revolutionized the world because it is so convenient. Special attention was shown by the cheers of the people, whose transportation had been on the electric road. To say that these were in the grand procession of display of Transportation day is to say that each was of its kind a splendid exhibit. The whole was best represented by the fact that the next to liberty, statesmen place facility of transportation as the essential to the prosperity of a country. The grand array of horse-drawn carriages, which came to the bicycle end of the transportation end of the tale. On these, swift demons of the municipality, the Spanish and the Japanese, the long through trains to Van Buren street were packed in three minutes, and sped away leaving scores of disappointed stragglers for a seat waiting on the edge of the platform to spring into the next train before it had fairly started.

The California building was still thronged, but of the gift display of fruit there remained not a basket of even fragments, and the great wagon, that had broken down just outside the gate, to the joy of the small boy and the self-helping fakir, who had neither pass nor admission fee to the great dispensation of the land of gold, was still waiting for a seat waiting on the edge of the platform to spring into the next train before it had fairly started.

The week was an illustrious one, beginning on Monday with New York day, when the finest thing that occurred in the history of the New York State building to the women commissioners for that State, which meant that its splendor would be preserved for the world. The material of the exposition; but the most unusual festival of the week—the fair, indeed—was the convocation of Druids, who never before had called together their elect outside the sacred shades of Wales. The first meeting held on Tuesday was not only initial, but imperfect because of ignorance of the geography of the grounds by those who had recently come from Wales to regularly convoked the first international assembly. The twelve unknown stones were placed at intervals of several feet in the grand plaza between the Government building and the lake front. In the center of the mystic circle, the Druids, dressed in the robes of their ancestors, prepared by a covering of gray plaster, had been inscribed mystic letters and symbols of the order, and the base of the stones was inscribed with the names of the order, and the base of the stones was inscribed with the names of the order, and the base of the stones was inscribed with the names of the order.

loading epithets of "circus" or "show." Yet the common pleasures of the common people are gratified while their noblest sentiments are stirred, and their finest instincts cultivated. The bands that led these serious men were gay. Their drum-majors were the supremacy of their position, and their uniforms, the "Denvers" were especially festive in amplitude of red calico trousers and white leggings; the bobbing progress of the bands, the whirling of the flags, the solid, much gold-braided turks, ponderously trotting with sedan chairs slung from their shoulders as well as the "Columbian" and "Chicago" bands of men, splendid in uniform and vigorous in spite of years, closed the long line of march that came again to be called up. The grotesque, novel and useful followed immediately out of Transportation building. An Indian, gorgeously feathered, and an old colored man, imposing with a ruffled shirt-front, bushy white wig and a three-cornered hat, appeared at the front, peered over the poles at the base of the box, preceded the heavy ornate four-wheeled Arba. Then came the camels, one with the tawdry canopy that has served the perpetual bride in her daily oriental wedding procession that is the ever new attraction of Cairo street in Midway Plaisance. The second camel wore the clumsy combination of sticks and coarse cushions from which the grass-stuffing seems always to have protruded, which serves as a trip to the Holy Land, take a camel-ride here. The slashing cowboys of the plains on their bucking broncos were in striking contrast to these shaggy children of the ages, while the shaggy burros drowsily dole out their snoring snore, and the covetousness of every child who saw them. An Indian pony carried a squaw and papoose on its back as it trotted, and a better looking man on its sides like thills, on which were bound the wigwam and its scanty furnishings, astride of which sat an Indian, who was drawing a team of saplings to score the ground. Mexican ponies carried on peculiar saddles the miniature cannon of early Spanish times, which were like those which may be seen perched on the rail of the Santa Maria of the Columbus fleet. These braided bands are again finished by wave-revers and collar of curve scicellene stiffened with muslin and lined with

The bodice is worn inside the skirt, and the belt around the waist is ornamented with three gathered ruffles, the first, together, there is a strap fastening with two buttons. The balloon sleeves are ornamented with six rolls of scicellene.

There is little or no difference between the handles of women's umbrellas and those seen on men's walking sticks, and the stick is there, too, in both cases. It is a wonder that men have been so long permitted to collect in peace their elaborate sticks. Now the end has come, and his best girl takes him any one or more of his sticks that sum look attests any man to be pleased and to get it mounted, too, for her as the handle of an umbrella. The more sticks, the more the girl, and the stick is the most prized. So, if the dear boy has an especially valued stick that has been made with him, or gone, he'll better deny himself the glory of carrying it and hide it away till this late caprice has spent itself.

ARE YOU A BRUNETTE?

(From Our Regular New York Correspondent.)

A style of girl who used to be much the fad a few years ago, has renewed its popularity. She is a woman of the world, and the work that emphasizes delicate features and a clear pale. The shadows under her eyes are so marked that in any other style of girl, the server would suspect artificiality. She has masses of dark hair, and she wears it in any way she fancies, with no reference to the prevailing style. There is an indifference of carriage, and of look, that somehow has much charm. It seems the result of wearisome popularity, and the girl, who attests any amount of attention and social rush. This girl does not dress with any special care, and her costumes do not fit, and she is not particularly graceful in her movements, and apparently the special admiration of all the men in her class. She has no particular grace of figure, and her great sombre eyes seem to size up every one, and not care much about what she they prove to be. She is just the girl who isn't a bit the thing, and she is the girl who is the best to be a fad. This girl she is having things a good deal her own way. One of them is sketched here. She stands alone, and all the women know she is all by herself because she insists upon being so, and all the men are waiting a sign to permit their approach. Her gown is olive green, and the color is a shade of her holds never saw a milliner's making, and her hair is not done as fashion demands. Yet she wins against all the disarrangements and the then struggle. Who can account for the fashion in girls?

POLICE BUSINESS.

Weekly Meeting of the Commissioners.

Los Angeles Street to Be Cleared of Lewd Women.

The Chief Instructed to Abate the Nuisance.

The Disreputable Basket Saloon to Be Allowed to Continue, Despite Commissioner Bradish's Vigorous Protest—Other Business.

The Police Commission met at the usual time yesterday, with the full board present.

The petition of Ramon Garcia for transfer of license at No. 214 East First street from Wm. H. & Nicholas of George Wautshar for transfer of license at the northwest corner of Maple avenue and Seventh street from Charles Hildebrand, and of Charles Arthur for transfer of license at No. 411 North Main street from H. Cleary were, on favorable reports, granted.

The Chief reported in reference to the petition of C. H. Schmidt for a license at No. 701 East Eighth street that there were some protests against the granting of the license which he had been unable to fully investigate. Action was deferred for one week.

The Chief reported through Officer Marsh on the petition of S. W. Luitwiler and others asking that immoral houses on Los Angeles street be closed. The report follows:

In regard to the petition of C. W. Luitwiler and others for the removal and closing of all immoral houses on Los Angeles street, between Second and Aliso streets, I beg leave to report that I have made a thorough and exhaustive investigation of the facts in the case, and find that there are at present five cribs or rooms occupied by dissolute women, which rooms are situated between First and Requena streets and are numbered respectively 125, 127, 129, 131 and 133 North Los Angeles street, and occupied by the following women: Jennie, Andrea, Milly Cline, Mary Smith, Minnie Rose and Louise Fisher, who occupy each a front and back room in the little, old, tumble-down adobe house of above numbers, and being the property of Mrs. W. Rumpf. These women pay a monthly rental of $15 for these rooms unfurnished, and while these women, for their kind and class, are remarkably quiet and orderly, had no rows or robberies occur in their rooms, it is an open and notorious fact that they are prostitutes. While there is very little open soliciting from their windows, which open on the ground floor directly on their sidewalk, they advertise their occupation by signs at their windows in low-cut dresses, and as plainly invite male visitors to visit them as though they solicited openly. No passers by, even the most ignorant or illiterate, could hesitate in determining their character. But they do solicit in a quiet way, as can be testified to by any member of the detective force. In my conversations with the business men on Los Angeles street I learn that their wives will not go to their husbands' places of business on account of these houses and their occupants, and while Mrs. Rumpf does not exact by half the exorbitant rent that is charged for cribs on Alameda street, yet the fact remains that they are willing to pay three times the amount they at present pay if allowed to remain in their present quarters. Only a few days since one of these lewd women went to Mathews Bros. store on Los Angeles street, and offered them $50 per month for a little room adjoining their store, which amount was equal to the total rent they pay for their entire store. It is needless to state that they declined to rent the room for such purposes. Los Angeles street has, in the last five years, become the principal wholesale business street. A large number of commission houses on other streets are anxious to move to Los Angeles street, if suitable blocks could be erected and these objectionable people removed. In behalf of morality and decency, I would strongly recommend the closing of these cribs, and the removal of these lewd women to some suitable part of the city. It is a well-known fact that only a few years since this particular part of Los Angeles street was occupied by some of the worst dives in the city, but under your administration these places have been closed, and the only remaining eyesore to the street are these five cribs, as before mentioned; and I would strongly recommend to the honorable Board of Police Commissioners, that the necessary steps be taken at once to effect the removal of this class of women from Los Angeles street. I have been unable to interview Mrs. Rumpf, who is out of the city.

The Mayor asked that the following from the penal code be read, which was done: "Section 263. Every person who keeps any disorderly house or any house for the purpose of assignation or prostitution, or any house of public resort by which the peace, comfort or decency of the immediate neighborhood is habitually disturbed, or who keeps any inn in a disorderly manner, and every person who lets any apartment or tenement, knowing that it is to be used for the purpose of assignation or prostitution, is guilty of a misdemeanor. Approved March 30, in effect July 1, 1874."

Commissioner Bosbyshell moved that the chief be instructed to take the proper steps to abate the nuisance. Carried.

The petitions referred to the chief were from John Boyer, for transfer of license from No. 228 to No. 217 Aliso street; from E. S. Norton, for transfer of license at No. 712 East First street; from Mrs. Frank Custer, and from G. A. Norman, for a license at No. 232 East First street.

Applications from G. R. Gates, F. M. Dyke, and A. McNeal, for appointments on the police force, were placed on file.

The demands were approved.

Some one asked the Mayor if he had heard anything more in reference to whether the Council were to grant an addition to the police force, to which the Mayor replied that he had not; but that he thought if some of the councilmen were to have their houses burglarized they would, perhaps, change their minds.

Commissioner Tufts. You haven't heard any murmuring of applicants for positions as policemen, have you?

Mayor Rowan. Oh, no.

Commissioner Bradish then moved that the license for the saloon of Jean Rappet, on Alameda street, which matter had been under consideration for some weeks, be revoked.

A good deal of discussion ensued, and Commissioner Bradish said that when it was considered that the man in question could not speak English without an interpreter, as had been shown when he was before the commission, and also that his wife lived next door in open prostitution, there seemed to be more than sufficient reason for the revocation.

Commissioner Bosbyshell said he could not agree with this view. He believed that there should be no electric communication between the saloon and the cribs, as at present. These he Chief Glass said that he had endeavored to, as far as possible, keep the unfortunate women out of the streets by having the drinks served by the rear rather than by the front entrances. He was of the opinion that it would be better to permit the drink near by they would be out on the street a good deal in going after it, which would, he thought, be worse than to let them get the drink inside.

Mayor Rowan said that he believed, as did the chief, that it would be better to let the saloon remain in their midst.

In speaking again on the subject Commissioner Bradish said that if the saloon were to continue there, then it would undoubtedly be the case that a large number of young men who might chance to be in the neighborhood would go into the saloon, and after being muddled by drink would be steered into the neighborhood of the "mads" who frequented the place.

Commissioner Bosbyshell admitted that there was a good deal of truth in the chief's assertion, and he believed it best to remove the license.

Commissioner Weldon said that he thought those who visited that locality were with a perfectly well-defined purpose in view, and that the presence of the saloon there would make little difference to them.

Mayor Rowan said that two or three previous commissions had tried to drive this prostitution out of the city, but that it had been found impossible to do so. If it were to be carried on anywhere within the city, then the place where it was about as good as any that could be selected.

The motion of Commissioner Bradish that the Rappet license be revoked was then lost by the following vote: Yeas, Tufts and Bradish; nays, Bosbyshell, Weldon and Mayor Rowan.

Commissioner Bosbyshell moved that the chief be instructed to have the annunciator arrangement taken out of the Rappet saloon, which motion was carried, and the adjourned.

In regard to the Rappet matter, there have been quite a number of stories afloat, and during the past week it has been freely asserted that the license would never be revoked. More than the usual talk about corruption has been indulged in, and it is claimed that one of the commissioners even went so far as to make inquiries regarding the payment of money reflecting on another member of the board. This fact was brought to the attention of the commissioner referred to, and it was expected that some personal explanations would be demanded at the meeting; but this was not done, and the session passed off harmoniously. It is safe to say that the last has not been heard of the Rappet matter.

MOTHERS, be sure and always use Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for your children while teething. It is the best of all.

HEALTHY CHILDREN come from healthy mothers. And mothers will certainly be healthy if they'll take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Nothing can equal it in building up a woman's strength, in regulating and putting in perfect order every part of the female system. It lessens the pains and burdens of child-bearing, supports and strengthens weak, nursing mothers, and promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment.

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nerve, and a guaranteed remedy for all female ailments. In every chronic "female complaint" or weakness, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

Thousands of people, with worse cases of Catarrh than yours probably is, have been permanently cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. That is the reason why the proprietors are willing to promise you $500 if you can't be cured.

Dr. Wong's SANITARIUM!

Four years ago my daughter, Virginia Bell, was treated by Dr. Wong for what physicians called hip disease, and had pronounced incurable after treating her for eight years. Dr. Wong's diagnosis was that she was afflicted with one of thirteen forms of cancer. His medicine effected a permanent cure in seven months' time. Two years ago my grandson became blind in one eye. Dr. Wong restored his sight in three weeks' time.

A. LASSWELL, Savannah, Cal. After I had been treated eleven years by six different doctors, for consumption, and they had stated that I couldn't live two months, I took Dr. Wong's medicine and was cured in seven months. I enjoy excellent health and weigh 175 pounds.

J. T. Sheward

ONE of the criticisms offered about our advertising the other day was it sounded like a man talking to a lot of old women. That was just the point arrived at, we were talking to a lot of old women that day and a lot of them came to see us. It wasn't our day to talk goose talk, so that fellow didn't like it and he didn't come. We don't run a quackery quack! quack! quack!!! It is surprising how many new ideas get into a fellow's head, and they must pop out. The green craze was started by a crazy Frenchman. Now everybody has turned green. Every minute in the day there are calls for green velvets, green dress goods, green cloaks, and when they don't ask for green it is heliotrope. We are glad of it. We are just as green looking in here as you will find any where, and we have plenty of greens, and will have as long as the green craze is on. It is surprising how many shades of green there are, and when it comes to heliotrope there is no limit. We have another new line of velvets and silks, just as handsome as a picture. The shades are perfection. The dress goods trade is on the top wave. The shadings are more perfect this season than ever before, and the prices were never so low. It is a touch of economy that has struck the average household, and we encourage it by reducing the prices to the lowest limits. Velvetens 50c, 60c, 75c, $1. Silk Velvets $1, $1.25, $1.50. All-wool Dress Goods 50c, 60c, 65c, 75c, 85c, 90c, $1. We take as much pains in matching your samples as we do in selling you a full dress. It is our way. Notion stock full up. Every thing you need and more too, for that matter. In talking dress goods why not secure a Royal Worcester Corset. This corset has the largest waist line of any corset made, and your new dress fitted over a Royal Worcester Corset will make a handsome woman out of you. Now you will surely buy a Royal Worcester Corset. More new cloaks, more cloak selling. The big Cloak Department has a reputation for square treatment. New broadcloths today, new black broadcloth today, new colors in cloths, new Hercules Braid. More new hosiery for boys, the kind that will stand the rough and tumble boy. Twenty-five cents a pair for a extra heavy quality. Still a few more hose for children, worth 60c, worth 50c, worth 40c, worth 35c, now 2 pair for 15c or 4 pair for a quarter. Two days more and the end will come. Probably one day more. Better take advantage now, you can get a better assortment of sizes.
